DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1-15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Bosshart, Patent No. 6,246,266.

As to claims 1 and 10, Bosshart teaches determining when power consumption by an integrated circuit (dynamic logic circuit 16, abstract) needs to be reduced, and gradually reducing an amount of current sourced by a power supply based on the determination (abstract and col. 10 lines 13-65).

As to claims 2, 5, 11, and 13, Bosshart teaches selectively disabling a first transistor based on the determination, wherein disabling the first transistor causes a reduction in an amount of current sourced from a power supply, selectively disabling a second transistor based on the determination, wherein disabling the second transistor causes a reduction in the amount of current sourced from the power supply, and selectively disabling a last transistor based on the determination, wherein disabling the last transistor causes a reduction in the amount of current sourced from the power supply (power down mode, col. 10 lines 13-65).

As to claims 3, 6, 12, and 14, Bosshart teaches selectively generating a signal to a counter stage, wherein the counter stage generates a first signal to the first transistor, a second signal to the second transistor, and a last signal to the last transistor (inherent in the determination process, col. 10 lines 13-32).

As to claims 4 and 7, Bosshart teaches the counter stage comprises at least one selected from the group consisting of a finite state machine and a counter (inherent in the process of determination, col. 10 lines 13-32).

As to claims 8 and 15, Bosshart teaches selectively enabling the first, the second, and the last transistors when power consumption does not need to be reduced (col. 11 line 54 – col. 12 line 17).

As to claim 9, Bosshart teaches the first, the second, and the last transistor can each be one selected from the group consisting of a p-type transistor and a n-type transistor (col. 13 lines 14-27).
